

Urban Design Evenings

In partnership with the Urban Design Group, Nottingham Trent University is hosting a series of speakers to share knowledge and experience in the creation of better designed places.

The series will lead up to the National Conference on Urban Design which is scheduled to take place at Nottingham Trent University in Autumn 2014.

The evenings will offer the opportunity to meet people who are involved in or are interested in the design of the urban environment. All sessions are open to students, practicing professionals in both the public and private sector, and the general public to help raise awareness of the value of urban design in creating better places.

The programme will be inspiring and engaging with the opportunity to share, discuss and explore ideas. The evenings are free of charge with no booking required.
